OUR YOUNG SOLDIERS

Encampment and Picnic of the G. A. R and Sons of Yeterans Ended.

THE SMOKE CLEARED AWAY

A Few Disappointments Encountered-Governor Toole Did Not Issue the Order-Captain Wyman's Speech.

BUTTE, Sept. 13 .- The second annual encampinent and picnic of the G. A. R. and Sons of Veterans is over. Tents have been taken down, camp fires extinguished and mimic warfare is over for and her year. In a great many respects the affair was not the grand success expected and much disappointment is the result. Where the blame rests is hard to result. Where the blame rests is hard to tell, as each person interested tries to place it upon the shoulders of someone elso. To-day, as the closing one, was to be a gala day, and for that reason perhaps too much was expected. The promised parade of the militia did not occur, Colonel Lloyd, commanding the First regiment, failing to issue an order for the local companies to turn out, aithough he had promised to do so, providing Governor Toole, as commander-in-chief, would give the required permission. Captain turn out, atthough he had promised to do so, providing Governor Toole, as commander-in-chief, would give the required permission. Captain Dougherty of the Sons of Veterans wrote a personal letter to the governor, requesting permission for the troops to parude, a request that was readily granted, with the notice that the necessary instructions would be issued to the colonel. Captain Dougherty showed the governor's letter to the commanding officers of the various commanies and they promised to order their companies out, provided the required order was issued from headquarters, but the looked-for order failed to materialize, and hence there was no narade. The Sons of Veterans, camps No. 1 and 18 of the P. O. S. of A., the William Tell Benevolent society and the G. A. R. turned out and made quite a creditable display as they marched through the streets to the music of Orton's band. Without the P. O. S. of A. and the William Tell society, however, the parade would have been a very tame affair. At the gardens very few of the promised events took place. The target shooting, competitive drill and sword contests did not reach a stage of materialisation any more tangible than their announcement on the posters advertising the encampment. None of the expected contestants appeared on the grounds, and, of course, the events themselves could not take place. The balloon ascension, though, was great and the most successful yet witnessed in this part of the country.

sion, though, was great and the most successful yet witnessed in this part of the country.

The address by Captain Wyman was also excellent, and the old warrior covered himself anew with glory. He briefly told the aim and objects of the order known as the Sons of Veterans, which, he said, were for the purpose of maintaining and perpetuating the principles and institution for which their fathers had fought on the field of battle. With such an organization as the Sons of Veterans, he said, the country could feel rafe and rest assured that it would always have a body of men ready to defend it against enemies without and insurrection within. They were Americans, proud of their country, and ready at all moments to follow the examples of their lathers and risk atl they had in its defense. The address was delivered in beautiful language, and was one of the ablest efforts in oratory yet listened to by a Butte audience.

After the address the balloon ascension ablest efforts in oratory yet listened to by a Butte audionce.

After the address the balloon ascension took place, and it was then announced that the sham battle would be next on the programme, and the crowd began to ascend the hill to where the slaughter was to take place. But some more disappointment awaited the people. Ordnance Sergeant Ritchie had failed to order up the ammunition train, and when time to issue the ammunition it was found that none was on hand. Some of the officers gave an order to storm the enemy's works at the point of the bayonet, but the stock of "Mad Anthony" Wayne was considered too small, and the project was abandoned. Others again wanted to mount "Quaker guns," but this also was abandoned, as the looks of the fellows considered too small, and the project was abandoned. Others again wanted to mount "Quaker guns," but this also was abandoned, as the looks of the fellows who were holding the fortification show them to be made of material other than "featherbed" soldiers are composed of, and that they could not be frightened by a lot of noise and display of force. One enthusiastic young lieutenant declared he could carry the works with his troops, around with "shadigee guns" but he was voted down as a "Johnnie-come-lately" and it was finally decided to give up the attempt altogother. As the boys were there for war, however, they mutinied against the decision, and throwing away their arms they made a rush for a lot of fireworks, and charged the hill, much to the delight of women and children, who had been withdrawan to a safe distance. The subsistence department was cleaned out, owing to a miscalculation of the commissary officer. When mess call was sounded for the last time a hungry crowd made a rush for the mess hall only to be confronted by a statement that the supply of grub had given out and not as much as a lone bean or mutiliated hard tack could be obtained. Company quar termaster, Sergeant Harrison, who; was in charge of the cook house, informed the famished campaigners that nothing remained except the dishes and cooking utensils, which stood in shining rows on the tables. The fire in the beanhole had been extinguished, and as far as his department was concerned "taps" had been sounded. This made the soldiers a triffe hot and they made a vigorous kick and began to search for the commissary officer, who wisely kept out of sight and thereby prevented an open mutiny and a serious breach of military discipline. When the last rocket in the "sham battle" had accended heavenward the "retreat" was sounded and the troops withdrew. The encampment was over, tents were pulled down and eitzens and soldiers returned to their respective homes. to their respective homes.

QUEBEC, Sept. 13.—A fire started this morning in the grocery store occupied by Ovelett at Cape Bianc, and before the flames were gotten under control, had destroyed 29 houses and a portion of the Boman Catholic church. A portion of Ovelett's place was found saturated with coal oil. When this fact got noised about an infuriated mob precured a rope and an infuriated mob procured a rope and capturing Olevett, were about to lynch him, when the police rescued him. He is safely lodged in the city prison.

A Large Majority. TECUCIGALHA, Honduras, Sept. 13.— The election has been completed. General Leiba has secured a very large vote for the presidency. His majority is esti-mated at three-fourths of the total vote. The balloting was conducted in a per-fectly peaceable manner. General Lieba's inauguration will take place in November.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 13 -England has chartered a steamer to proceed to Ichang with men and guns.

MYSTERIOUS MISS AVA. She Leads in Prayer at a Moeting in Cin-cinnati-Not Die de Bar,

CINCINNATI, Sept. 13.—Vera Ava still remains the heroine of a cunning, romantic episode, or the victim of a cruel outrage. Dr. Bonell of New York, who knows Dis de Bar, saw Vera Ava last night and said: "This is not Dis De Bar." The description of the latter agrees with that of the woman here in many respects. She is not so large as D.s De Bar and does not possess such a repuisive countenance as De Bar is said to have. To an Associated Press representative this evening she scouted the Do Bar theory, saying that all who knew Do Bar on seeing her will testify she is not that woman. A Mr. Hammell of New York, who asserts be will know Dis De Bar in any disguise, is expected to arrive here to-morrow to see whether the woman is really that person. This morning the woman was visited by a committee from the W. C. T. U. She led in prayer and afterwards thrilled them with her eld quence, taking for her theme the condition of some children that occupied cells in the House of detention. She asserts she has good reasons to not make known her friends in London. She says she has a right to expect help from Dr. Bolton of Chicago. She broke out into a denunciation of Dr. Bolton, accusing him of ingratitude and unfaithfulness While arranging her calico dress some While arranging her calico dress somewhat she exclaimed, "This is all that is left of a woman I killed, or tried to kill, on Friday when I made my escape. I intend to keep this as long as I live and hope to be buried in it when I die." She asserts Archbishop Feehan was displeased with her because the poor children she tried to elevate were in Dr. Bolton's congregation. ton's congregation. She spoke fluently of Madamo Blavatsky, Walter Besant, John Ruskin and other English notables in literature and art. She improves every opportunity in conversation to re-vert to her hobby, the raising of children from the slums.

CHICAGO, Sep. 13.—It is learned that one of the mysterious Miss Ava's intione of the mysterious Miss Ava's inti-mates here was a young woman who claimed to be Kate Cooley, a member of the wealthy Cooley family of Philadelphia, The alleged Miss Cooley disappeared suddenly. There is considerable spec-ulation as to whether she was an ac-complice or a victim of Miss Ava, or possibly had something to do with the sup-

RETURNED THE SLIPPER. But Not Until He Had Time to Fill It

New York Correspondence Cincinnati Enquirer.

A clever fellow, somewnat on the dude pattern, scored a hit as an auditor at a comic opera the other night. He was among the expectant youths in the front row who gaze and gaze throughout an only an occasional joke, in the vain hope that the prima donna will turn her dusky orbs upon them and confess her infatua-tion. If the prima donna is a little choice with her dusky orbs then a smile from a with her dusky orbs then a smile from a soubrette or even a chorus girl will be gratefully accepted. This particular youth had certainly not charmed the prima donna, but possibly the soubrette, who danced more or less nimbly after her song, cast a sparkling glance in his direction between steps. At any rate he thought she did, and wondered all through the first act how it would be possible for him to meet her. The second act came and the soubrette proceeded to execute another dance, the third since the operategan. It was a rather wild dance, requiring a reckless use of the heels and, as the young woman was giving a special to indicate that she wanted the slipper back again. But it was not forthcoming, and the dancer was compelled to retire without it. The third act came and the soubrette, supplied with ber new slippers, proceeded with a fourth dance. When she had finished and was bowing to the applause, the young man in the front row stood up and threw the lost slipper over the footlights. It fell on the stage at the actress' feet. Since the previous act it had been filled with flowers, and from its sliver buckle was suspended a card. There was a hiss from the back of the theater, but the good-natured people laughed and cheered, and the young man who created the disturbance rose and bowed with great ceremony to the audience at large. He had exhibited a certain quality of brilliancy and courage, and his reward was swift. In fact, he supped with the dainty dancer that night after the show.

FOOD GOING TO WASTE.

Farmers in California Caunot Find Markets for Their Potatoes,

From the Sacramento Bee. While thousands of people are actually starving in some of the foreign countries, food is going to waste in California. The state seems to have more produce than she can dispose of. The granaries are almost bursting with the cereals that have been crowded into them. The orchards have put forth such an enormous quantity of fruit that only a portion of it can be disposed of, and vegetables are simply a drug in the market. This is particularly the situation in the case of potatoes. Such a vast quantity of spuds was raised this year that thousands are being allowed to go to waste in the fields.

Samuel Lavenson of this city, who owns a ranch down the river, told a Bee reporter to-day that in the Pearson R clamation district alone no less than 60,000 bushels of potatoes would not be digged, for the reason that it would not pay to do

The International Congress of Geologists Visit the City.

GIVEN A GRAND RECEPTION

Wonderful Mines of the Greates Camp on Earth Viewed-En-tertained at the Silver Bow Club.

EUTTE, Sept. 13.-The international congress of geologists has come and gone. Its stay in Butte was limited to three hours; but, notwithstanding the three hours; but, notwithstanding the short space of time, the ladies and gentlemen composing the party were shown every attention calculated to make their visit pleasant and instructive. About half past 1 o'clock a committee from the Silver Bow club boarded a special train at the Northern Pacific depot and intercepted the inceming train bearing the visitors at a point about a mile beyond Meaderville. The geologists were accorded a hearty welcome to Butte by these gentlemen, and before the train arrived at the Montana Union depot a cordial acquaintanceship had sprung up.

The excursion was under the auspices of Messrs. Raymond and Whitcomb, and the most strenuous efforts of this company were exerted to make the trip as comfortable as possible. F.ve luxurious Pullman cars accommodated the excursionists, and the entire special train was the acme of modern railway service. A perfectly appointed dining car catered to the gastronomic wants of the party, and the buffet smoking coach afforded an agreeable lounging place for indulging in the sceiability which whiffing good cigars always inspires.

The magnificent train of cars rolled into the depot about 2 o'clock, and a good-sized crowd of spectators were present to take a look at the men and women who

The magnificent train of cars rolled into the depot about 2 o'clock, and a good-sized crowd of spectators were present to take a look at the men and women who had come so far to study the wonders of the silurian, paleczoic, and other prehistoric ages of geological history. As soon as the cars came to a stop the occupants lost no time in emerging from their temporary home, and shortly the platform was crowded with the eager sightseers. One might have imagined himself on Shinar's plain, as he mingled with this babel of torgues. Almost every nationality was represented and all appeared anxious to wield the geoligists hammer upon some unfamiliar block of stone. The electric cars were immediately boarded for the ride up town, and soon they were recovering from the fatigue of their journey, in the luxurious apartments of the Silver Bow club. A pleasant half hour was spent in conversation and sociability, during which time the methods of mining and the geological formation of the country was discussed and explained to the guests. After a formation of the country was discussed and explained to the guests. After a brief breathing spell, carriages were taken for a ride to the different mines Members of the club acted as escorts and each party was attended by some one familiar with and capable of explaining the various processes of mining. Most of the large mines in the vicinity were favored with a carriage load or two of sight seers, and a short time was profitably spent in each place viewing the subterranean wonders of nature, and examining the rock formation of the lower levels.

iming the rock formation of the lower levels.

Each one of the party carried a hammer slung on his hip—after the manner of a cowboy carrying a pistol, and when some piece of rock or cropping would strike his fancy the hammer would be brought into play, and after a few vigorous whacks the coveted piece would fly off and soon be nestling together with hundreds of other specimens in a large bag slung around the scientist's shoulders. The party returned to the depot about 4 o'clock thoroughly delighted with the hospitable treatment and decidedly impressed with the results of their investigations. "Good byes" were indulged in and shortly after the special train departed for the Blue Bird mine.

On the arrival of the geologists at this place they were recovered by Successive of the party of the party of the content of the geologists at this place they were recovered to the second of the content of the geologists at this place they were recovered to the geologists at this place they were recovered to the geologists.

On the arrival of the geologists at this place they were re-ceived by Superintendent Van Zandt and were shown every attention that un-stinted hospitality could suggest. A deli-cate lunch awaited the party, the tables being spread in the carpenter shop. A being spread in the carpenter shop. A collation consisting of sandwiches, saids, ice cream and fruits was discussed for perhaps half an hour, with champagne to wash down these delectable viands. When the keen edges of the appoittes of the travelers were removed, a visit to the mine was the next form of entertainment for the afternoon. About 50 of the party descended the shafts, while the remainder examined the machinery in the mill or collected specimens of rock from the vicinity of the works. After a pleasant stay of about an hour at the Biue Bird mine, the visitors once more boarded their train, and with Expressions of profuse thanks to Mr. Van Zandt and his assistant for their polite and kind attention, were whirled southward on their journey to Salt Lake.

It was seen that the rails and life boat had been smashed; that the deck was damaged and several plates had been bent. Owing to ominous evidences of the collision it was first believed the consequence of 5the accident was more serious than proved to be the case. The passengers were much alarmed and life boats were prepared, but their fears were scon allayed. The Arizona for a long time searched in vain for the unfortunate sailing vessel. Part of the bowsprit was left on the Arizona's deck. From the wreckpassenger makes the following state-ment: "After passing Sandy Hook we entered a haze, which later became a dense fog. A New Pennsylvania Metropolis,

From the Bradford Era. The embryo city of Falls Creek, Pa, has a newspaper now, the Herald. It began its existence last week. Fall Creek either has a glowing future before her, or else way. It is claimed that within the next year this town will have two additional railroads, making six m all; car works, a union depot, two tanneries, large glass works, and an electric railroad. There is a reasonable certainty that most of these things will come to pass, but as the town is less than two miles from DuBois, all this is likely to be tributary to her. However, there is bound to be a good town there, and that in a very short time.

UNCERTAINTY OF LIFE THE MONTANA.

"If Any Man Will Do His Will, He Shall Know of the Dec'rine."

CERTAINTIES IN RELIGION

Rev. Dr. Graves' Sermon at the First Baptist Church Last Evening-Examples in Everyday Life.

BUTTE, Sept. 13 .- The congregation of the First Baptist church were agreeaby surprised on entering the edifice morning to see it had, during the past week, been greatly improved in appear ance by having been repainted and kal-somined. The improvements have been contemplated for some time, and the committee who had charge of the work did themselves credit.

Both morning and evening services were well attended. In the evening the building was so crowded that it was with difficulty all could secure seats.

The Sunday school in the afternoon was well attended, noticeable among the attendance being a number of young men who seem to have suddenly taken a deep netrest in the good work.

The morning sermon was lengthy and well received. The pastor, Rev. A. W. Graves, preached on "The Golden Girdle," taking his text from Col. III; 14: "Above all these things put on love, which is the bond of perfectness."

This discourse was upon the subject of love, and the reverend gentleman in a thorough manner showed all the importance of that evention.

thorough manner showed all the importance of that question.

At the evening service he preached on "What We Know," or "Certanties in Religion." "If any man shall do his will be

"What We Know," or "Certanties in Religion." "If any man shall do his will he small know of the doctrine" was the text, and was taken from John VII; 17. Life is full of uncertainties, commenced the speaker. Who can teli what a day will bring forth? There is no one who can be entirely certain of the next moment in this life. A husband and father kisses wife and child good bye to go out on business or to his office and within five minutes he is weltering in his own blood, stricken down by the hand of an assassin. A woman upon a mission of love and stricken down by the hand of an assassin. A woman upon a mission of love and mercy, as is supposed, enters a church to have an interview with a priest, and is spirited away; very mysteriously disappears, wakes up and finds herself within a few hours in a distant city. The miner eats his breakfast at an early hour and with dinner pail upon his arm goes cut to his daily toil and a sad and unforseen accident prevents his return to his humble home. A man to-day worth missions either makes or neglects to make his will. He dies and to-morrow contestants and proponents or neglects to make his will. He dies and to-morrow contestants and proponents are contesting for his accumulated wealth. Then true success is sure to none. A young man fully equipped fer life starts out with high hopes and flattering prospects. He says: "I will deny myself, I will live by all the rules of temperance and morality, and I will be sure of success." Yet how often have we seen such confidence shattered by failure or sudden and untimely death! Our home, where peace and hallowed joy reign today, may to-morrow be lying in the shadow of the death angel's wings. These are some of the things that are uncertain in life. Let us look at a few shadow of the death angel's wings. These are some of the things that are uncertain in iile. Let us look at a few things in regard to religion of which we may all be certain. We know that Christianity exists in the world, that it has existed for 1800 years, and that through all the world the force of Christianity is to-day greater than any other force which is known among men. We know this from the historical argument. It has been subjected to the severest tests of historic criticism, and from out the flery crucible the pure gospel comes unharmed. Napoleon, the great warrior, in conquering leon, the great warrior, in conquering genius said: "I know men, and I tell you Jesus Christ was not a man." The religion of Christ is a mystery which subsists by its own force and proceeds from a mine The speaker spoke on the truths of religion from the moral argument, the hypothetical argument and the practical testimony of personal experience. Only a brief outline of the lengthy sermon preached by the pastor is here given. On conclusion he was congratulated on all conclusion he was congratulated on all sides by his congregation for the cloquent manner in which he handled the subject.
